WHAT MY ABSENCE FROM CHURCH DID*

1. It made some question the reality of religion.
2. It made some think I was a pretender.
3. It made many think I regarded my spiritual welfare and that of others as a matter of small concern.
4. It weakened the effect of church services.
5. It made it harder for the preacher to preach.
6. It discouraged the brethren, and therefore, robbed them of a blessing.
7. It caused others to stay away from church.
8. It made it harder for me to meet the temptations of the week.
9. It gave the devil more power over lost souls.
10. It encouraged the habit of non-church going.

It is dangerous not to attend church services! (Heb. 10:25-31).

Think smiles, and smiles shall be;
Think doubt, and hope will flee.
Think love, and love will grow;
Think hate, and hate you'll know.

HEROD THE GREAT

Herod the Great was the second son of Antipater, an Idumean, who was appointed procurator of Judea by Julius Caesar, B. C. 47. He was physically magnificent and no less conspicuous for skill in war. He was clever, able but unscrupulous and ambitious. He grew more cruel and suspicious as he grew older until the reputation for cruelty has in popular thought almost or quite eclipsed his real ability as a ruler. At his father's elevation he was made governor of Galilee, being about 25 years old. In B.C.41 he was appointed by Antony tetrarch of Judea. Forced to abandon Judea the following year he fled to Rome, and received the appointment of king of Judea. In the course of a few years, by the help of the Romans he took Jerusalem (B. C. 37), and completely established his authority throughout his dominions. The terrible acts of bloodshed which Herod perpetrated in his own family were accompanied by others among his subjects just as terrible, from the number who fell victims to them. According to the well-known story, he ordered the nobles whom he had called to him in his last moments to be executed immediately after his decease, that so at least his death might be attended by universal mourning. It was at the time of his fatal illness that he must have caused the slaughter of the infants at Bethlehem. Matt. 2: 16-18. He adorned Jerusalem with many splendid monuments of his taste and magnificence. The temple, which he built with scrupulous care, was the greatest of these works. The restoration was begun B. C.20, and the temple itself was completed in a year and a half. But fresh additions were constantly made in succeeding years so that it was said that the temple was "Built in forty and six years," John 2: 20, the work continuing long after Herod's death. Herod died of a terrible disease, at Jericho, in April B. C. 4, at the age of 69, after a long reign of 37 years.

"Amazing grace! How sweet the sound."
